

OLD HOME WEER 1964
MADISON, N. H.

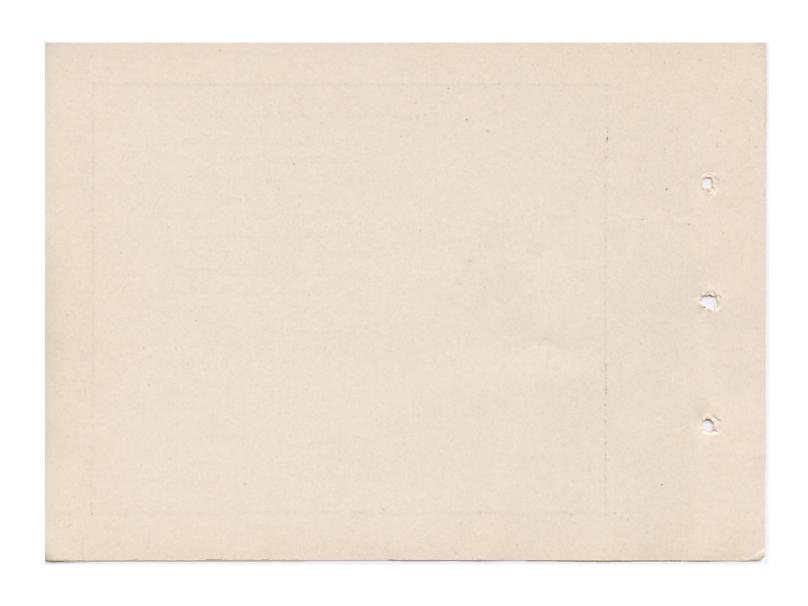

Letter of Invitation.
"Sons and Daughters of Madison,

"Sons and Daughters of Madison,
We invite you back to show
Homage to a common birthplace
And the days of long ago.
You were born where rugged mountains
In stupendous grandeur stand,
Taught the lessons of your childhood
From the book of Nature grand.
So we hope you'll wander backward,
Through the scenes of youth elate,
To repeat the matchless glories
Of the grand old Granite State."

JAMES O. GERRY,
Secretary.

Its Location and Attractions

ADISON is on the Northern Division of the Boston & Maine railroad, 125 miles north of Boston. As we leave West Ossipee on the journey north, the wooded hills of the Ossipee Range roll back on the left showing a fine view of the Sandwich Range on the northwest. The great Tamworth Valley opens on the left, girded by tall mountains and rugged ridges. As the train passes on, various views are given of the Sandwich Range on the left.

various views are given of the Sandwich Range on the left, the nearest mountain being the superb white peak of Chocorua; next the low and ledgy Paugus; then the dark and pointed Passaconway; the high blanched cliffs of Whiteface; the lofty flat top of Sandwich Dome; the crest of Mt. Israel isolated on the plain. The pyramidal Whittier Peak is seen at the end of the Ossipee Range, and the Alpine Heights to the north gradually fall behind each other as the train advances. On the right, the Green Mountains of Effingham are frequently seen, and a glimpse of Kearsarge and Moat is obtained far in advance.

SILVER LAKE is seen close at hand, and its white, sandy beaches are followed for a long distance, with Glines and Lyman Mountains beyond, and Silver Lake Village at its head. Silver Lake is one of those graceful bodies of water that suggest a Highland Loch, a Swiss Lake, the Gulf of Venice, or any of those dreamy places of rest. From the village it opens up a long vista of most entrancing appearance, while from the lake and southern shore, delightful mountain prospects gleam on you over a sheet of liquid silver.

ANOTHER attraction is Bickford's Cave, which is about six miles from Silver Lake. It is a gothic arch, gray, mossy and grand, looking out upon a dark, deep, woody gorge, and is thirty feet high and twenty-five feet wide, The back has such an inclination that seats for eighty persons could easily be arranged as in an ampitheatre. From the top, a ridge of earth has been cast up in former days that leads to Pea Porridge Pond, and a legend connects it with the Indians who once roved these wilds. Pearson Heights and Loud's Hill are charmingly picturesque and attractive, and present unrivalled long distance views of the White Mountain region. From Gove's Hill can be seen seventeen sheets of water. The view from the summit of Deer Hill is unsurpassed for beauty, even among mountain prospects, and its sunrise and sunset views well repay the tourist and traveller.

"I love these low hills in the green of summer,

I love them in autumn's rich vesture of brown,

And oft in the spring do I worship and wonder,

As beyond their gray crests the great sun purples down."

MADISON BOULDER—The largest of the glacial travellers on this continent is perhaps the one situated in the north-west part of Madison, not far from the White Ledge quarries. Its length is seventy-five feet; height from the surface of the ground thirty-eight feet; it has six sides respectfully, 32, 22, 75, 31, 14, 40 2-3, making a circumference of 214 2-3 feet. It is granite of a porphyrite texture, and closely resembles the rock forming Mt. Willard. The lower ends are scow-shaped, and the mass rests upon a bed of pieces of rock of the same material.

THE SILVER-LEAD MINE—First worked in 1826, will well repay a visit. The rock is a quartzite near an immense sandy plain, where rock exposures are almost unknown. The galena gave 94 ounces to the ton, with a large per cent. of silver.

Historical Notes of Madison

ADISON AND EATON originally were chartered as one town in 1764, and was named Eaton in memory of Gen. John Eaton for meritorious military services. The name of Eaton continued until 1852 without division, in which year, by an act of the legislature, Madison was then constituted a town by itself.

There was no permanent settlement in the town until about 1780, when Samuel Banfill, the great grandfather of the writer, built him a log house near the old burying ground on land now owned by Lester R. Ambrose. Mr. Banfill also built the first framed house in town. About 1780, Mr. Robertson came and settled at what is now called Eaton Center. Oresiphorus Flanders, great grandfather of the writer, came from New Hampton about 1787, and settled on land now owned by James F. Durgin. There were at that time ten families in town. My grandmother was a daughter of Mr. Flanders and she has told me many times the names of each one. Samuel Banfill, Dr. James Jackson, Thomas Burke, Timothy Danforth, Thomas Danforth and Mr. Robertson were among the number. After about 1790 came quite a number of families and Eaton was a place to emigrate to up to 1835. The new settlers cleared land, built houses and mills, and had fine stocks of cattle. Clearing the land and burning the growth made it rich in potash and the crops were abundant.

About 1850 came up the question of dividing the town and was the cause of much contention. At last in the year 1852, at the fall session of the legislature, an act was passed to constitute the town of Madison. Artemas Harmon, Esq., then a member of the legislature from the town of Eaton, had much influence in forwarding the measure. The writer was at the village when the news were received that the town was divided, and it was duly celebrated by firing of guns and other demonstrations of joy.

The early settlers of the town had many hardships to encounter. In the year 1816, there were no crops raised by reason of the cold, wet weather, and they had as much as they could do to keep soul and body together. The next year, 1817, the crops were plentiful. As one old man said, "they passed from a sharp famine to unbounded plenty."

Most of the early settlers were descendants of the Orangemen, that settled in the central part of the state near Manchester, and they had wonderful energy to endure the hardships of a pioneer life.

Madison abounds in beautiful scenery. The Big Boulder, Jackson's Ledge, Stacy Mountain, the Rock House and Lead

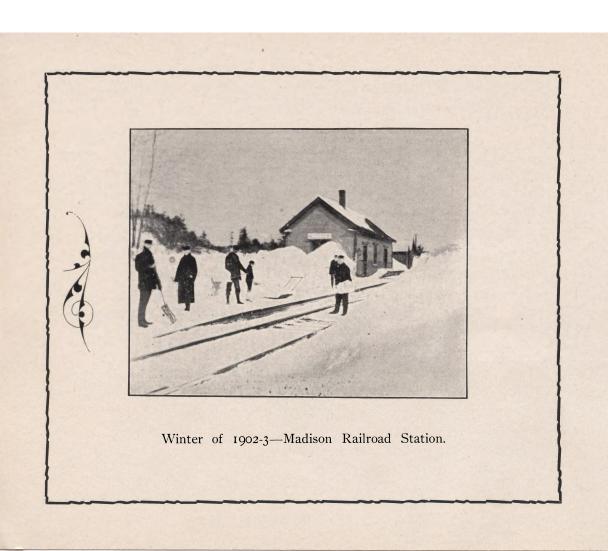

Mines are all worth a visit. From the top of Stacy Mountain can be counted seventeen (17) ponds and lakes. The drive from Madison to Conway abounds in beautiful views.

There are several springs in town that have medical properties. One at the foot of Stacy Mountain is quite a curiosity from the large volume of water that flows from it; one also at East Madison near the residence of Edward E. Hoyt; one near Ruel Allard's; one near Blue pond; and one near the residence of the late James J. Burke.

The air of the White Mountain region is very bracing. A gentlemen told the writer that he had visited all parts of the world, except Australia, and he had never found so pure air as in the region of the White Mountains.

Augustus Lary, Historian.

Reminisences of Early Days

bore their hardships without a murmur, and had in their hearts and lives the spirit and love of liberty, patriotism and education, as is attested by their record in the War of 1812, and later by their descendants in the Civil War. In the War of 1812 were George Martin, Nathaniel, Stephen, John and Moses Harriman, Joseph and William Lyman, Josiah Thomas, Nathaniel and Robert Drew, Isaiah Forrest and James Mooney. Robert Drew was the last pensioner of the war.

James Merrow was a gunner in Perry's engagement on Lake Erie. John Marsh was captain of a company which marched to the defense of Portsmouth. Ephraim Nason, Joseph Snow and Stephen Snow were also in the service.

Isaiah Forrest was a recruiting officer in the war of 1812, and enlisted men in Eaton and marched with them to Burlington via Concord. From Burlington he carrried 20,000 for the government to Portland. Following is a copy of his appointment as ensign:

WAR DEPARTMENT, June, 16, 1814.

SIR: You are hereby informed that on the 25th instant, the jurisdiction of the U. S. appointed you an ensign in the 26th reg't. of infantry in the service of the U. S. whereunto the senate at the next session, with its advice and consent thereunto, you will be commissioned accordingly. You will immediately on receipt of this, please communicate to this department your acceptance or non-acceptance of said appointment and report yourself to Colonel J. Clark.

J. ARMSTRONG,

Sec. of War.

Gen. Hercules Mooney of the Revolution, was of Lee. He served through the war with credit. He had a grandson, James, born in 1798. Here his active, resolute disposition, brought him into military life, and he was in the War of 1812, and later became captain of a company of militia, which afterward entered the U. S. service and bore a conspicuous part in the Indian Stream War.

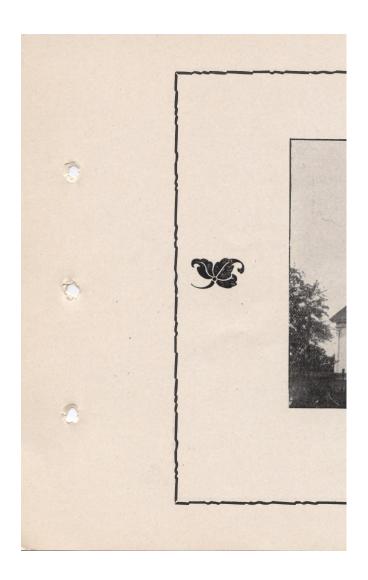

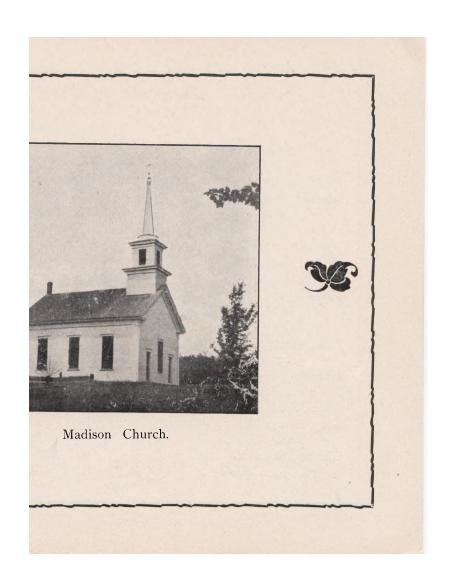

"And sometimes, when the moonlight silvers hill and vale and stream, It shines on the old church windows with a faint delusive beam, Till imagination pictures the church with light agleam.

In fancy seems a beauteous throng of worshippers in white, Whose faces bring back long ago, yet glow with strange, new light, While from their lips angelic songs make music in the night."

"My native town, I love to tell thy charm;
Right royal are thy gifts from Nature's hand,
Here she bestows for all earth's woes a balm,
O fairest spot in all the favored land,
Thy beauteous lakes, bright gems, set deep in green,
Amid dark forests beam upon our sight;
The morning glories tint their silver sheen,
The evening gilds all with its amber light.
O half score woodsy ponds that we call ours;
Ye bring sweet peace to many a troubled heart:
Your coves all lily-lined, your fern fringed bowers,
Lure one to rest from all the world apart."

Old Homestead of Robert Drew, Pioneer Settler of the Town.

Now owned by Mrs. Sarah Scammon of Dixfield, Maine, daughter of Henry and Ruth Harmon, also early settlers here. Occupied by Anthony Frost, Mrs. Frost and her son, Charles Ransbottom, who lives with her, being granddaughter and great grandson of said Robert Drew.

AN loving remembrance of our venerable grandsire, we, his grandchildren, consign to this Old Home Week Book, this picture and brief sketch of his life in this town.

He was born in Newfield, Maine, March 31, 1796, one of a family of seven sons, who all saw more or less service in the wars of this country. He enlisted in the 1812 War at the age of 16 years and served two enlistments, one of three years, and one of three months. He came to this town, then known as Eaton, in 1818, then 22 years of age, and went to work for Richard Lary on the old Colby farm where James Gerry now lives. About two years later, he married his daughter, Betsy Lary, and began life in a little log cabin but a short distance from the present buildings. At this time the site where our little village and surrounding cottages now stand was a dense pine forest. His work then was cutting this timber which was sawed into shingles and other lumber at a mill on Deer River, but a short distance from his home. Seven children were born to them, four girls and three boys. Two of the boys, Daniel and Enoch, served in the Civil War. He also has a grandson, Robert Drew, son of Enoch Drew, who has been in the United States service for the past eight years, taking part in the Spanish War and work in the Philippine Islands. His oldest son, Richard, went away from home when very young and learned the stone cutting trade, and eventually settled in East Milton, Mass. He was a very energetic young man and very much interested in the welfare of his parents, struggling along amidst the hardships of pioneer life. The first money he saved after learning his trade was expended for a neat little frame house and a number of acres of land surrounding it. This house was but a short distance from the cabin on the old stage road, and was built by Harvey Hayes, his brother-in-law. He moved his parents there sometime in the forty's. They lived there until 1865, when he still thoughtful of the comforts of the old folks at home, came here and built the house shown in the accompanying picture and moved them there where they lived in peace and quietness with their son, Daniel, until grandma's death in 1882, after which time he made his home with his daughter, Mrs. William Kenerson, of Tamworth, until his death, Jan. 19, 1889, at the good old age of 92 years and 9 months. Mrs. Kenerson, and his son, Enoch, are the only surviving children.

He had a natural gift for composing poetry, and could he have had an education, would have made his name famous in this way. He drew a pension of $12 a month, but being a great worker, found employment in his declining years by tending to his garden, making baskets and bottoming chairs. He went to the woods and got the material himself and prepared it for use. He could do some very fine work up to the very last few years of his life. He was a very genial man, and all loved to listen to the quaint stories and comical ditties of Uncle Robert. After his death the place was sold to David Knowles, who built him a fine residence on a part of the place then known as the "Whale's Back". He sold off house lots until eight families have homes on the original farm. Among these are Mrs. Anthony Frost, Mrs. George Nickerson and Mrs. Frank Lyman, his grandchildren, who look with reverence on each hallowed spot made dear to them by the memory of their ancestors.

HE Madison Pulp & Building Co. was organized under the laws of the state of New Hampshire. Capitalized for $250,000.00.

Shares $25.00 each. Its purpose is the development of land bordering on Silver Lake, where a fine view of the White Mountains is to be had, making an ideal spot for a summer home.

Immense quantities of Vegetable Pulp found on the property is to be used for commercial purposes and the company intends to begin manufacturing as soon as a plant can be put into operation.

A valuable patent has been secured covering the uses of this material.

A Spring of the purest water, having health giving properties, is also one of the company's possessions. This water is to be placed on the market at once, and a spring house is in the process of erection.

A large boat house and pavilion has been opened to the public, and the launch makes regular trips from the station at Madison to the pavilion landing, making it easy of access to all cottages.

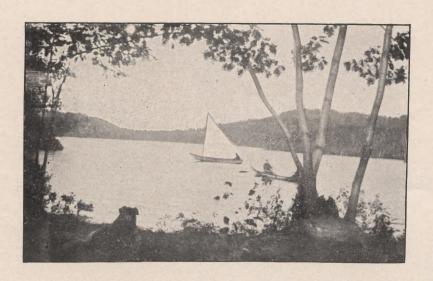

Special inducements offered to parties who build.
